PROVINCIAL FAIR.

The List of Prizes Awarded Competitors—The Concluding Events.

Next Exhibition to be Held at Westminster—Our Home Manufactures.

New Westminster, Oct. 5.—The exhibition was brought to a successful termination on Friday night. The weather on the last two days could not have been more favorable, and the attendance was consequently very large. The visitors came from Vancouver by special excursion trains in hundreds, and from every point on the river, Victoria and Vancouver Island generally, no doubt on account of the distance, and expense and time involved in making the journey, were not well represented. This is unfortunate for several reasons. The "Mainlanders" took advantage of it to prove that the "Islanders" had not the cause of agriculture, etc., really at heart, and that therefore the "provincial" in future ought to remain permanently at New Westminster, the centre of the farming interest. This feeling was very generally expressed by the citizens of Westminster and by not a few of the most enterprising farmers of Chilliwhack and the Delta district, who, although admitting the existence of an unwritten law that provided for the holding of the show alternately on the mainland and island, subject, of course, to a vote of the members, were of the opinion that the time had arrived for New Westminster to assert its claim to the "provincial" as its exclusive property. The splendid enterprise of the citizens in erecting buildings and in preparing grounds, all in the course of a few months, was pointed to with satisfaction, and the credit of possessing the most suitable structures for such a purpose unquestionably must be given to the Royal City. These considerations, assisted to some extent by the spirit of sectionalism or antagonism, which cannot be ignored, was the cause of the summary disruption of the boat at the annual meeting last night. Perhaps, on the whole it will result in good to both sections. The samples of home manufactures, although not very numerous, indicated a steady growth in what must soon become one of the most important interests in the province. Apart from the machines and implements show by agents of eastern makers—a useful feature in every show—the infant industries of the two terminal cities alone were represented with the single exception of Carter & Ferris', display of Victoria ales. The Vancouver Soap Co., had an excellent display of several varieties of soaps. The Royal City Planing Mill Co., the largest manufacturing concern on the mainland, exhibited doors, sashes, mantels etc. of a quality and finish that would bear comparison with the product of any city in the country. The Westminster Woolen Mill Co's exhibit of tweeds and flannels would have taken a prize at the Toronto show competing against the tweeds of Almonte and Cornwall. Both in texture and finish these cloths were of a very superior character. Winsemute Bros., and F. W. Hart & Co., in the furniture line, also made very fine displays. Other home manufacturers were represented, but these were the principal exhibits. The photographs and amateur artists in crayons and oils were not numerous, but several exhibits were highly creditable and proved that art was not being neglected by our people. A few tawdry schoolboy sketches might have been left out without injury to the cause of art, but the connoisseur would understand that these efforts were not intended as any more that samples of first lessons in "free hand" drawing.

It is needless to particularize in the various departments. The exhibition on the whole, was an unqualified success. The show of horses and cattle was the best we have seen in the province, while fruits and roots were not inferior, if indeed they did not surpass the displays in the same line at Victoria last year. The arrangement of the exhibits was all right, but there seemed to be a want of system in the secretary's work, and that officials was overborne with work. Last night the torchlight procession and fireworks were a big success, making a fitting termination to the exhibition.

GENERAL DISPATCHES.

A Startling Discovery in Regard to Dead Horses—What They are Used for.

China Pirates Attack at Opium Boat—Kill the Crew and Carry Off the Cargo.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Attorney for Woodruff, the Cronin suspect, withdrew his petition in the habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Baker this morning, and the prisoner was returned to jail. Afterwards Woodruff's attorney went back for Judge McConnell and made a motion for an immediate trial. The court overruled the motion in the case and it went over to the next term. The attorney took objection.

THE SNELL MURDER.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The Globe to-day publishes a two column article in which it is claimed sufficient evidence has been discovered to show that Fred. Schuneman, who was mysteriously shot about one o'clock on the morning of Aug. 30th, 1888, was murdered by the same person who murdered millionaire Snell, and that the murder was committed because Schuneman had discovered who Snell's murderer was.

ORIENTAL FLOODS.

San Francisco, Oct. 5.—By the steamer Belgic, which arrived from Hongkong and Yokohama late last night, it is learned that much suffering exists in the districts of Japad recently devastated by flood. The following report gives some idea of the terrible extent of the calamity. The commander of a Portuguese gunboat stated that for a distance of no less than ninety miles along the coast he passed through floating debris of houses and wreckage of furniture so thickly scattered over the surface of the sea that at times it almost became necessary to stop the vessel.

On the sixth of August, China pirates attacked an opium boat near Tonquin, killed the six men on board and took everything in sight and then sunk the boat.

THE CATHOLIC HIERARCHY.

A Letter by Cardinal Gibbons on the Celebration of its Establishment.

Baltimore, Oct. 5.—Cardinal Gibbons has prepared a pastoral letter on the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the Catholic hierarchy in the United States.

He dwells on the progress of the country and the Catholic religion. There is now embraced within the United States a Catholic population of about 9,000,000. There are 10,500 churches and chapels, twenty-seven seminaries exclusively devoted to training candidates for the ministry, 650 colleges and academies for the higher education of the young of both sexes, 3100 parish schools and 520 hospitals and orphan asylums.

"The church," says the Cardinal, "exhibits vigorous activity and steady growth, which afford a well-founded hope of unlimited expansion in the future."

SEIZED SEALSKINS.

An Important Decision Rendered by Judge Sabin.

San Francisco, Oct. 5.—Judge Sabin, in the circuit court has rendered a decision in the case of L. N. Handy & Co., against Barton Atkins and others in favor of Atkins. In September, 1886, the schooner San Diego was seized by the revenue cutter Corwin in Behring sea for killing fur seals and was ordered to Sitka, where she and her cargo of 577 sealskins were condemned by the court. Barton Atkins, marshal of Alaska, brought the skins to San Francisco and placed them in the hands of Davis, Huber & Co. auctioneers, for sale. Handy & Co. enjoined the sale on the ground of lack of jurisdiction, claiming that the authority of the Alaskan court did not hold here. They demand restitution of the skins, which they value at $2,000. Judge Sabin overthrew their plea, giving judgment to Atkins.

It is understood the principle of this decision covers those seizures which have taken place in Behring sea at any time. It applies to the schooners San Jose and Mary Ellen, which were seized in Behring sea last year and ordered to Sitka, but went to Drakes Bay and afterwards came to this harbor. It also applies to those schooners which have run away with their prize crews, as it establishes that the orders of the revenue officers, when sustained by the courts, hold good everywhere in American waters.

STARTLING REVELATIONS.

Respecting the Foreign Extract of Meat Business.

London, Oct 4.—Startling revelations regarding the foreign extract of meat business have just been made at a provincial police court, where a boy was charged, at the instance of the Royal Society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, with cruelty to a horse by driving it during the night in an almost dying state. An inspector of the society stated upon oath that investigation had developed the fact that the animal was being taken to a man who exported hundreds of tons of horseflesh annually to Antwerp, where it was made into extract of beef. It was also stated that animals barely able to crawl were gathered by this individual from all parts of the country. These revelations have made a profound sensation among the medical profession, as well as in the grocery business, and steps are to be taken without delay to prove their truth or falsity.

SOCIALIST CONVENTION

Has No Connection with Anarchists or Any Other Party.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—A mass meeting was held last Sunday afternoon in Verwaertz Turner hall under the auspices of the Socialist Labor party. The topic was "Our Principles and Our Tactics." Adelbert Hamilton, a local attorney, was chairman, and introduced J. T. Bush, of New York, as the first speaker. Mr. Bush briefly outlined the fundamental principles of state socialism. He declared that believers in socialism were in no sense either anarchists or sympathizers with anarchists, and the delegates present at the convention were not there to pass resolutions regretting the hanging of Spies, Parsons and the rest. He declared that socialists were loyal to the government and believed in centralization of the executive and distribution of legislative power. L. Winsman, the next speaker, said the party could not contenance any sort of combine with any other party as such action would injure socialism without helping the laboring man a particle. Tommy Morgan, local socialist leader, followed with one of his characteristic speeches. He said that by reason of private ownership of land and products, monopolies were easily created. These pools were so strong that they defied even law. Four men control the meat markets, eight own hard coal, and sixty families all the railroads. In the regular session of the convention little was done. Chairman Buse called for the report of Secretary Rosenberg, of New York. The reading of it occupied over two hours. Mr. Rosenberg denounced Sergius S. Schevitch editor of the Volks Rietung and Lucian Sanial of the Progressive Labor party, as boodlers, and produced papers and documents to support his assertions. Rosenberg, Kuntz, Gerrick and Souter, the members of the executive who were suspended, intend to appeal to the party at this convention, and expect to be recognized as the executive authority of the national organization. Charges preferred by Secretary Rosenberg will be referred to a special committee of investigation.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES

Notes of General Interest in the Sporting World.

The horse Ito, belonging to Messrs. Jones & McNeil, of this city, won in the races at Westminster yesterday. Ito is a Californian horse and holds a good record.

In the scalling race Chas. Bush, of this city, defeated his competitors easily, reaching the end of the course an incountable number of lengths ahead. There were three other entries.

LACROSSE.

The lacrosse match at Westminster on Thursday attracted a large crowd of spectators. It was played against time, two hours being the limit.

In the first game the ball went straight to the Westminster goal and did not get further back than centre field. After a scrimmage of 7½ minutes Wood dropped the ball to McGregor, who put it through, winning the first game for Vancouver.

In the second game Vancouver claims that the ball was put through the Westminster goal after a few minutes play, but the umpire, it is said, was so much taken up with the fair that he did not see it. The game being played out was won for Westminster in 35 minutes.

In the third game the ball flew one end of the field to the other with lightning rapidity, till finally put through Vancouver's goal by Lewis in 18 minutes.

In the fourth game Westminster insisted on a change of umpires and Anderson was substituted for March. The game was won for Westminster, after much the same play as in the third in 20 minutes, McMartin scoring.

The fifth game was won by Vancouver in 10 minutes, after a closely contested game, McGregor scoring.

The result is what was expected. The Vancouver boys, it is said, were not supported by the citizens of the terminal city and they were not in proper practice to meet a team like Westminster. A match to be played on Beacon Hill between the two clubs for the championship, to take place in about a fortnight, is now talked of.

RIFLE TELEGRAPHIC MATCH.

A Telegraphic Rifle Match is proceeding to-day in ten cities of the Dominion. The telegraphic match is a kind of competition that has become very popular in recent years. It is conducted under the following rules: Teams of twenty men are selected from the local rifle associations of the cities which desire to compete and each of these teams shoot on their own ranges under the supervision of an umpire. The scores are then telegraphed to Montreal, where they are compared, and each of the competitors notified of the result. It is difficult to make up a good team of twenty men in a city the size of Victoria, but she is competing in to-day's match not withstanding that the local men feel that they are badly handicapped. Had the number on the teams been less, say ten men, the Victoria marksmen would enter the race feeling that they stood a chance of getting a good position on the list. A great deal of interest is taken in this the first match of the kind that has been shot throughout the Dominion and the Illustrated Canadian published in Montreal will issue a special number containing the scores and cuts of each of the members of the teas s taking part.

HON. MR. TURNER AND HOME INDUSTRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR.—The Hon. Mr. Turner's actions as a private individual should be consistent with the position he occupies as a public servant, or, as THE TIMES very pertinently stated, he should resign.

The Hon. Mr. Turner was elected by the citizens to guard and protect their interests and to use the honorable position intrusted to him to advance the general welfare of the country to the best of his ability, for which he receives a tidy sum, paid indirectly by the public to remunerate him for the loss of time and attention to the important duties of his office.

How well he earns it and how consistently he endeavors to repay the confidence reposed in him I leave the public to judge. If it is by supporting and diverting all the trade he can from this country to American shipping he certainly is accomplishing his object with marked success.

Messrs. T. B. & Co's statement, that the arrangement they made for their salmon freight, is a very small hole for the Hon. Mr. Turner to crawl out of, in fact too small for him to squeeze through. It is quite possible that the Lakme was the only American vessel they could get for this purpose, but I challenge them to prove that they made the slightest effort or enquiry as to whether the service could have been performed by a Canadian vessel. I am fully aware that at least one company was in a position to have delivered sixteen thousand or more cases of salmon from Skeena river to San Francisco by the 7th of October.

It would be interesting to know what effort if any, the Hon. Mr. Turner made to secure the services of a local steamer, thereby retaining their earnings in the province.

The Lakme laid at anchor within a mile of the outer wharf for two hours or more and loaded Mr. Stapleton and Wm. Boylow, who came direct from Skeena river on her, also the purser, who after attending to his affairs in Victoria, returned on board, when the vessel proceeded on her voyage without having reported at the customs house—an infraction of the coasting laws.

Messrs. T. B. & Co., state the Lakme case as follows. "She enters at Fort Simpson from a foreign port, lands at the canneries and clears at Fort Simpson again for a foreign port. In an incredible short time, Messrs. T. B. & Co. would have it understood, that the Lakme went to Fort Simpson, entered, and then under the eye of the law and with proper surveillance proceeded to the different canneries, loaded, returned to Fort Simpson and cleared for a foreign port.

The facts are as follows: The Lakme called at Fort Simpson and the fact of her calling was noted on her American clearance by an official of the Hudson's Bay Co. She then proceeded to the various canneries, with passengers, and having loaded came on direct to Victoria without returning to Fort Simpson—further infractions of the law and most unfair as affecting the interests of Canadian coasters, so much so that it will doubtless receive prompt action at the hands of the customs authorities.

Yours,
JNO. IRVING

Dominion Parliament Meet on the 10th Inst., According to Gazette.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—D. A. Ross, acting Minister of Public Works of the province of Quebec, in speaking of the great railway projects of the province, in connection with United States trade, said: "A gigantic undertaking is on foot in which the United States people east and west are interested, and for which government aid is asked, involving a new route from the west to the seaboard, and the creation of an all the year round seaport on Canadian soil, competing, so far as western traffic and Canadian shippers are concerned, with Boston, New York and Portland.

Laws Relating to Prisons—Telegraph Tariff.

Special to THE TIMES.]

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—Sections 14, 15 and 16 of an act respecting public reformatories and prisons have been declared in force by a proclamation issued to-day in gaols in British Columbia. These sections refer to the sentencing of prisoners, remission of a portion of sentence, and forfeiture of such remission.

According to the Canada Gazette, parliament meets on the 10th. It appears that it was neglected to publish the usual prorogation this week.

The table of tariff over Dominion telegraph lines in British Columbia, published in to-day's Gazette, between Brakerville, Stanley, Quesnelle, Soda Creek and Victoria, the price for ten words is $1.

AGAIN AT THE ROYAL CITY.

The Exhibition of Next Year to be Held at New Westminster.

New Westminster, Oct. 5.—At a meeting of the Provincial Agricultural Exhibition held last night the following officers were elected: Thos. Cunningham, president; Major Oppenheimer of Vancouver and Geo. W. Chudsey of Samas, vice-presidents; Thos. R. Pearson, secretary.

After the elections a long discussion arose as to the locality of the next exhibition. Arguments were put forward for different places, but upon being voted upon it was carried that the exhibition of 1890 be held at the Royal City.

Last night the city was illuminated, fireworks were let off and a torchlight

THAT RESTRICTION ACT.

Our dispatches inform us that the British Government has drawn the attention of the Dominion authorities to a danger which threatens friendly treaty relations between Great Britain and China, unless the Chinese Restriction Act of 1885 be modified, and desires that such steps may be taken at the next session of parliament as shall remove all cause for alarm. It is further intimated, that Mr. DAWDNEY's Chinese speech at the banquet given him in Victoria, was intended to prepare the public mind for such modification of the treaty as the government might see fit to institute. It is scarcely necessary for us to remark that any serious modification of the Restriction Act of 1885 will lead to an issue more direct and more far-reaching in its effect than the Jesuits Estates. Sir JOHN may dabble with politico-religio matters with comparative impunity, but when it comes to dealing with an essentially labor question the case is altogether different. It is a question of bread and butter, and it may be depended that working men will solidly oppose any movement calculated to make competition in the labor market any keener than at present, while to this element we may add the small capitalists as represented by farmers and retail dealers of staple articles of merchandise. Nor is the prejudice, if so we must style it, against the Chinese confined to this coast alone. The Chinese question is well understood in the east. It is pretty safe to say that Sir JOHN with all his popularity, and acknowledged ability, will find himself relegated to private life if he undertakes to let down the bars to Chinese immigration. But the part this province has to play in the matter, for the present, is local. We are on the eve of a parliamentary election. Mr. EARLE proposes to assume the discarded toga of the recalcitrant BAKER, and it is now in order for him to declare his attitude towards the Restriction Act. We do not know whether Mr. EARLE is to have an opponent or not for Mr. BAKER's vacant seat. Speaking from present knowledge there is'nt much prospect of it. The opposition has not shown its hand. Its policy is wrapped in impenetrable mystery. The opportunity, however, has now presented itself to the opposition. If Mr. EARLE personifies an aggregation of virtues as affecting the immediate interests of Victoria which invite the endorsement of all parties, and thus leave the opposition with no option but to support him, in the proposed modifications of the Restriction Act a new phase is introduced, and the opposition is afforded a peg whereon to hang its political pretensions. But, it is not to be supposed that Mr. EARLE will be so indiscreet as to declare himself in favor of the modification of the Restriction Act. We are not to infer that he will commit political hari kari at the expense of an honorable parliamentary career. Prudence will dictate that he array himself on the popular side of the question. Mr. EARLE, in fact, has no choice but to declare himself against the modification of the Restriction Act or remain at home. It is also opportune to remark that the present M. P's should declare themselves in this important matter. They may dislike to wound the susceptibilities of the Colonist, of Mr. DEWDNEY, of Sir JOHN, and finally Lord SALISBURY, but they must either do this or raise a storm about their ears which will drive them into private life. It is the sheerest nonsense that we must submit to an invasion of coolies that amicable relations may be sustained with the Chinese empire. There is nothing in it but diplomatic bluster, inspired principally by the intrigues of the English colony of traders at Shanghai and other trading points on the coast. China is not going to kill the goose which lays the golden egg. China has tasted the sweets of foreign trade. She has grown rich by it, she will not in the interests of her coolie immigrants sever her commercial relations with England. But suppose she does. Which is the most important to the Dominion, to be Britishcised or Chinacised? Shall British Columbia become practically a Chinese colony that a few English importers may continue to pile up their millions? The deal is not a fair one. The interests of the Dominion at large are not to be made the price of amicable relations with China and the trade dealings of a score of English importers. But the modification of the Restriction Act will not work injury to labor alone. Business men will suffer as well. The displacement of 5,000 white laborers by as many Chinese in this province would be accompanied by a corresponding falling off in retail trade. Merchants, grocers and hotels would suffer. The appreciation of property on Fisgard street would be followed by a corresponding depreciation of property on Government street. The Chinese question is understood in this city in all its phases. Now, that the mandate of the Imperial government has been received to modify the Restriction Act, it is simply a question of what Canada is going to do about it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Toronto Mail: The Minister of the Interior at a banquet in Victoria excused himself from making a long speech lest the old chieftain should say to him on his return to Ottawa, "You talk too much." It is not difficult to guess who the other cabinet minister was. But Mr. DEWDNEY then proceeded to make a deliverance in which he surely earned the rebuke he professed to dread. The premier has always been anti-Chinese. The minister nevertheless argued that the way to promote manufacturing in British Columbia was by cheap labor, and that the cheap labor necessary, for a time at least, was that of China.

There is talk of erecting a monument in Washington City to LUCY B. HAYES, wife of RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, ex-President of the United States, Mrs. HAYES was a strong temperance woman and she carried her temperance principles to the White House with her. By all means let Mrs. HAYES have a monument, not because she was a prohibitionist, but because she had the moral courage to practice in the exclusive set in which she moved the principles she taught to the world at large. There is need that this kind of courage should be recognized. Mrs. LUCY B. HAYES deserves as fine a monument as ingenuity can devise and money purchase.

A report to the British Board of Trade on railway accidents in the United Kingdom during the year 1888 shows that the proportion of passengers killed was one in 6,942,836, and of injured one in 527,577. Only eleven were killed and 594 injured in consequence of accidents to or collisions between trains, the other casualties being attributable to various other causes, and especially to want of caution on the part of the individuals themselves. There is not so much danger in traveling by rail as most people imagine. It is even said that those who go about the streets of great cities are in greater peril than passengers on railway trains.

A Boston writer dubs the maritime provinces the New England annex because they supply the Eastern States with so large an immigration. It is estimated that seventeen thousand "provincialists" went to the United States by water last year, and that the average of the exodus has been from ten to twelve thousand annually during the past fifteen years. Many maritime province people cross the line on speculation; others secure situations in advance through employment offices devoted entirely to the finding of work for "provincialists." Eastern Canadians are much in demand because they are so sober and so industrious. The circumstance speaks well for Canada; but it is not pleasant to reflect that so many people expatriate themselves to get a living.

San Francisco has been having a cigar agitation, that is, an inquiry has been set on foot as to the influx of Key West cigars into that city. The San Francisco cigar makers owe their troubles to their rapacity and the expectation that San Franciscans would put up with their miserable adulterations forever. It is astonishing how many people there are who cannot tell the difference between a poor cigar and a good one, and this is no less remarkable than the quality of poor cigars consumed by good judges of the article. The crowd is patient and long suffering. For years they sucked at the abominations of San Francisco cigar manufacturers, and when finally the opportunity was afforded them to switch off in favor of Key West they embraced it. Doubtless, now as the San Francisco cigar manufacturers are over, the Key West cigar is being adulterated. This is the age of fraud, and above all is the honest cigar manufacturer a phenomenon.

THE 'LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE.

Trouble Which Threatened Thursday and May Yet Break Out.

Matters in connection with the 'longshoremen's strike looked more serious yesterday than at any time since the strike began. When the Walla Walla arrived the members of the union, to the number of about 100, were on the C. P. R. wharf in waiting, and as there were rumors of trouble, from some threats previously uttered by the strikers, the outcome was looked forward to with considerable interest. As soon as the Walla Walla's lines were made fast, the trucks were lowered to the wharf and some freight. Then matters came to a standstill. It was evident that the 'longshoremen had decided to bring matters to an issue. They were requested to leave by Mr. Connon, but refused. The police were sent for, and Sergt. McLaren and Officer Cameron arrived on the scene soon after, these being the only officers, with the C. P. R. officer, Mr. Mee, available at the time. The strikers, when asked to leave the wharf, said they would go, but wanted the "scabs" to leave too. Mr. Connon informed them that the wharf was private property and the right was reserved to say who should go or who should remain. He would regard them as trespassers if they remained. However, as they refused to go, and it was evident that a force of three men were unable to carry out a mandate of eviction, nothing was done toward forcible ejection until after 6 o'clock. Sergt. McLaren communicated with the mayor at Westminster by wire and was instructed to swear in as many special officers as were required to carry out orders or quell any disturbances. About 7 o'clock the police went to the wharf in force, and the demand was repeated. Some of the 'longshoremen were bound on resistance, but the delegate counselled the men to leave the wharf and settle the question between now and the arrival of the next boat. After a good deal of murmuring and "kicking" the men took his advice and left the wharf. The gates were then closed and Officer Bray and three or four special officers placed in charge. During the afternoon a few of the men used threatening and abusive language, and it was at one time feared that a serious row would have ensued, and undoubtedly this would have been the case had an attempt been made to force them off the wharf before the police force was strengthened, the result would have been disastrous to those who undertook it.—Vancouver News.

WILL WONDERS NEVER CEASE?

The Telautograph for Sending Messages in the Original.

The telautograph (or electric means of telegraphing a message in the sender's handwriting), devised by Elisha Gray, is thus described: The apparatus consists of two writing tables, one at each end of the line, which consists of two telegraph wires. Over these tables are two writing pens in connection with the electric parts of the apparatus. One pen is for the person sending the message to write with, the other is for the automatic receipt or copying of the message sent. In moving his pen over the paper so as to form the letters, the sender, by means of metal brushes moving over contacts, interrupts two electric currents, one on each line. The current on one line is interrupted by the up and down strokes of the pen; the current on the other by the left and right strokes. The intermittent currents thus produced, after traversing the lines, pass through two sets of electro-magnets, whose armatures they attract and thus control the receiving pens.

The intermittent currents follow each other so rapidly that this step-by-step motion of the receiving pen is hardly noticeable, and the copy of the writing is said to be very exact. The instruments having been supplied with paper, the operator takes the transmitting pen, and holding it out of contact with the paper, moves it to the point over the paper at which he desires to begin writing the message. As the transmitting pen is thus moved, one or both of the brushes is turned so as to interrupt one or both currents, and thus through the magnets and their armatures move the receiving pen to a corresponding position on the paper, the receiving pen being raised out of contact by a special pen-lifter. The operator then presses his pen on the paper as in ordinary writing, and the table being depressed closes a local circuit and brings the receiving pen on the paper. The operator then writes, and the receiving pen follows his movements by means of the electro-magnets, actuated by the intermittent currents.

When the operator wishes to break off or to go back to correct, he raises the transmitting pen from the paper. This allows the table to rise and the receiving pen to rise from the paper. By shifting to the desired point and lowering his pen the operator causes the receiving pen to follow. When a new line requires that the paper be moved the operator works a handle and shifts the paper. A transmitter and receiver are fixed at each station. In order to transmit diagrams, maps or pictures the transmitting and receiving pens are allowed a suitable range, but there is no other change required. A pencil or stylus may be used in place of the transmitting pen, and the letters merely formed, not marked. It is expected that the apparatus will be useful in business transactions, for anyone can by its means be his own stenographer.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—It would be a gross injustice to confound that standard healing agent—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil—with the ordinary nostrums, lotions and salves. They are oftentimes inflammatory and astringent. This oil is, on the contrary, eminently cooling and soothing when applied externally to relieve pain, and powerfully remedial when swallowed.

—Mrs. E. H. Perkins, Creek Centre, Warren county, N. Y., writes: "She has been troubled with asthma for four years, had to sit up night after night with it. She has taken two bottles of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and is perfectly cured. She strongly recommends it, and wishes to act as agent among her neighbors."

DEAR SIR:

As E. CROW BAKER, Esq., M. P., has resigned his seat in the Dominion House of Commons, we, the undersigned electors of Victoria City and District, beg you to allow yourself to be placed in nomination as a candidate for the vacant seat.

We do this because we feel that at the present time it is imperative that Victoria should have the best men that can possibly be got to look after her interests; and as your business capacity, your large interests here, and your general fitness for the position, are so well known to us, we hereby pledge you our hearty support if an election is necessary.

SHORN LOCKS OF SAMSON.

SUBJECT OF DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON SUNDAY, SEPT. 29.

His Text Is from Judges xvi, 3, and His Discourse Is One of the Most Powerful of the Year — Full Report of His Remarks.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 29.—After expounding the appropriate passages of Scripture in the Brooklyn Tabernacle this morning the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D., gave out the hymn:

So let our lips and lives express
The holy gospel we profess;
So let our works and virtues shine
To prove the doctrine all divine.

The subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon was: "The Shorn Locks of Samson." He took for his text Judges xvi, 5: "Entice him, and see wherein his great strength lieth, and by what means we may prevail against him, that we may bind him to afflict him; and we will give thee every one of us eleven hundred pieces of silver." The sermon was as follows:

A REWARD OFFERED.

One thousand pounds, or about five thousand dollars of our money, were thus offered for the capture of a giant. It would take a skillful photographist to picture Samson as he really was. The most facile words are not supple enough to describe him. He was a giant and a child; the conqueror and the wheedler; able to map a lion's jaw and yet captured by the sigh of a maiden. He was ruler and slave; a commingling of virtue and vice, the sublime and the ridiculous; sharp enough to make a good riddle, and yet weak enough to be caught in the most superficial stratagem; honest enough to settle his debt, and yet outrageously robbing somebody else to get the material to pay it; a miracle and a scoffing; a crowning glory and a burning shame. There he stands, looming up above other men, a mountain of flesh, his arms bunched with muscle that can lift the gate of a city, taking an attitude defiant of armed men and wild beasts. His hair had never been cut and it rolled down in seven great plaits over his shoulders, adding to his fierceness and terror. The Philistines want to conquer him, and therefore they must find out where the secret of his strength lies.

There is a woman living in the valley of Sorek by the name of Delilah. They appoint her the agent in the case. The Philistines are secreted in the same building, and then Delilah goes to work and coaxes Samson to tell what is the secret of his strength. "Well," he says, "if you should take seven green withes, such as they fasten wild beasts with, and put them around me, I should be perfectly powerless." So she binds him with the seven green withes. Then she claps her hands and says, "They come—the Philistines!" and he walks out as though there were no impediment. She coaxes him again, and says, "Now tell me the secret of his great strength," and he replies, "If you should take some ropes that have never been used, and tie me with them, I should be just like other men." She ties him with the ropes, claps her hands and shouts, "They come—the Philistines!" He walks out as easy as he did before—not a single obstruction.

She coaxes him again, and he says: "Now, if you should take these seven long plaits of hair, and by this house loom weave them into a web, I could not get away." So the house loom is rolled up, and the shuttle flies backward and forward, and the long plaits of hair are woven into a web. Then she claps her hands and says: "They come! the Philistines!" He walks out as easily as he did before, dragging a part of the loom with him. But after a while she persuades him to tell the truth. He says: "If you should take a razor, or shears, and cut off this long hair, I should be powerless and in the hands of my enemies." Samson sleeps, and, that she may not wake him up during the process of shearing, help is called in. You know that the barbers of the east have such a skillful way of manipulating the head, to this very day, they will put a man, wide awake, sound asleep. I hear the blades of the shears grinding against each other, and I see the long locks falling off. The shears, or razor, accomplishes what green withes and new ropes and house loom could not do.

Suddenly she claps her hands, and says, "The Philistines be upon thee, Samson!" He rouses up with a struggle, but his strength is all gone! He is in the hands of his enemies! I hear the groan of the giant as they take his eyes out, and then I see him staggering on in his blindness, feeling his way as he goes on toward Gaza. The prison door is opened and the giant is thrust in. He sits down and puts his hands on the mill crank, which, with exhausting horizontal motion, goes day after day, week after week, month after month—work, work, work! The consternation of the world in captivity, his locks shorn, his eyes punctured, grinding corn in Gaza. In a previous sermon on this character I learned some lessons, but another class of lessons are before us now.

THE STRONG NOT ALWAYS WISE.

Learn first how very strong people are sometimes coaxed into great imbecilities. Samson had no right to reveal the secret of his strength. Delilah's first attempt to find out is a failure. He says, "Green withes will bind me," but it was a failure. Then he says, "A new rope will hold me," but that also was a failure. Then he says, "Weave my locks into a web and that will bind me," yet that also was a failure. But at last you see how she coaxed it out of him. Unimportant notions in life that involve no moral principle may without injury be subjected to ardent persuasions, but as soon as you have come to the line that separates right from wrong, no inducement or blandishment ought to make you step over it.

Suppose a man has been brought up in a Christian household and taught sacredly to observe the Sabbath. Sunday comes; you want fresh air. Temptation says, "Sunday is just like other days; now don't be bigoted; we will ride forth among the works of God; the whole earth is his temple; we will not go into any dissipations; come, now, I have the carriage engaged and we shall be back soon enough to go to church in the evening; don't yield to Puritanic notions; you will be no worse for a ride in the country; the blossoms are out and they say everything is looking glorious." "Well, I will go to please you," is the response. And out they go over the street, conscience drowned in the clatter of the swift hoofs and the rush of the resounding wheels. That tempted man may have had moral character enough to break the green withes of ten thousand Philistine allurements, but he has been overcome by coaxing.

Two young men passing down this street come opposite a drinking saloon, with a red lantern hung out from the door to light men to perdition. "Let us go in," says one. "No, don't," says the other, "I never go to such places." "Now, you don't say you are as weak as that? Why, I have been going there for two years and it hasn't hurt me. Come, come now, be a man. If you can't stand anything stronger, take a little sherry. You need to see the world as it is. I don't believe in intemperance any more than you. I can stop drinking just when I want to. You shall go. Now, come right along." Persuasion has conquered. Samson yields to the coaxing, and there is carnival in hell that night among the Philistines, and they shout: "Ha! ha! we've got him!"

Those who have the kindest and most sympathetic natures are the most in danger. Your very disposition to please others will be the very trap they set. If you were cold and harsh and severe in your nature you would not be tampered with. People never fondle a hedgehog. The most sentimental Greenlander never kisses an iceberg. The warmth and susceptibility of your nature will encourage the siren. Samson, with all his giant look out for Delilah's scissors. Samson, the strongest man who ever lived, was overcome by coaxing.

AN ILL DISPOSED WOMAN'S POWER.

Again, this narrative teaches the power of an ill disposed woman. In the portrait gallery of Bible queens we find Abigail and Ruth and Miriam and Vashti and Deborah, but in the rogues' gallery of a police station you find the pictures of women as well as men. Delilah's picture belongs to the rogues' gallery, but she had more power than all Philistia armed with sword and spear. She could carry off the iron gates of Samson's resolution as easily as he shouldered the gates of Gaza. The force that had killed the lion which one day plunged out fierce from the thicket utterly succumbs to the silken net which Delilah weaves for the giant. He who had driven an army in riotous retreat with the bleached jaw bone, smiting them hip and thigh with great slaughter, now falls captive at the feet of an unworthy woman. Delilah in the Bible stands in the memorable company of Adah, and Zillah, and Bathsheba, and Jezebel, and Athaliah, and Herodias. How deplorable the influence of such in contrast with Rebecca and Phoebe and Huldah and Tryphena and Jephtha's daughter and Mary, the mother of Jesus. While the latter glitter in the firmament of God's word like constellations with steady, cheerful, holy light, the former shoot like baleful meteors across the terrified heavens, ominous of war, disaster and death. If there is a divine power in the good mother, her face bright with purity, an unselfish love beaming from her eye, a gentleness that by pangs and sufferings and holy anxieties has been mellowing and softening for many a year, uttering itself in every syllable, a dignity that cannot be dethroned, united with the playfulness that will not be checked, her hand the charm that will instantly take pain out of the child's worst wound, her presence a perpetual benediction, her name our defense when we are tempted, her memory an outgushing well of tears and congratulation and thanksgiving, her heaven a palm waving and a coronal; then there is just as great an influence in the opposite direction in the bad mother, her brow beclouded with ungoverned passion, her eye flashing with unsanctified fire, her lips the fountain of fretfulness and depravity, her example a mildew and a blasting, her name a disgrace to coming generations, her memory a signal for bitterest anathema, her eternity a whirlwind and a suffocation and a darkness.

One wrong headed, wrong hearted mother may ruin one child, and that one child, grown up, may destroy a hundred people, and the hundred blast a thousand, and the thousand a million. The wife's sphere is a realm of honor and power almost unlimited. What a blessing was Sarah to Abraham, was Deborah to Lapidoth, was Zipporah to Moses, was Huldah to Shallum. There are multitudes of men in the marts of trade whose fortunes have been the result of a wife's frugality. Four hands have been achieving that estate—two at the store, two at the home. The burdens of life are comparatively light when there are other hands to help us lift them. The greatest difficulties have often sunk away because there were four eyes to look them out of countenance. What care you for the hard knocks in the world as long as you have a bright domestic circle for harbor?

One cheerful word in the evening tide as you come in has silenced the clamor of unpaid notes and the disappointment of poor investments. Your table may be quite frugally spread, but it seems more beautiful to you than many tables that smoke with venison and blush with Burgundy. Peace meets you at the door, sits beside you at the table, lights up the evening stand and sings in the nursery. You have seen an aged couple who for scores of years have helped each other on in life's pilgrimage going down the steep of years. Long association has made them much alike. They rejoiced at the same advent, they bent over the same cradle, they wept at the same grave. In the evening they sit quietly thinking of the past, mother knitting at the stand, father in his armchair at the fire.

Now and then a grandchild comes home and they look at him with affection untold and come well nigh spoiling him with kindnesses. The life currents beat feebly in their pulses and their work will soon be done and the Master will call. A few short days may separate them, but, not far apart in time of departure, they join each other on the other side the flood. Side by side let Jacob and Rachel be buried. Let one willow overarch their graves. Let their tombstones stand alike marked with the same Scripture. Children and grandchildren will come in the spring time to bring flowers. The patriarchs of the town will come and drop a tear over departed worth. Side by side at the marriage altar. Side by side in the long journey. Side by side in their graves. After life's fitful fever they slept well.

GOOD AND BAD WOMEN.

But there are, as my subject suggests, domestic scenes not so tranquil. What a curse to Job and Potiphar were their companions, to Ahab was Jezebel, to Jehoram was Athaliah, to John Wesley was Mrs. Wesley, to Samson was Delilah. While the most excellent and triumphant exhibitions of character we find among the women of history, and the world thrills with the names of Maria Antoinette and Josephine and Joan of Arc and Maria Theresa, and hundreds of others who have ruled in the brightest homes and sung the sweetest canto and enchanted the nations with their art and swayed the mightiest of sceptors, on the other hand the names of Mary the First of England, Margaret of France, Julia of Rome and Elizabeth Petrowna of Russia have scorched the eye of history with their abominations, and their names, like banished spirits, have gone shrieking and cursing through the world. In female biography we find the two extremes of excellence and crime. Woman stands nearest the gate of heaven or nearest the door of hell. When adorned by grace she reaches a point of Christian elevation which man cannot attain, and when blasted of crime she sinks deeper than man can plunge. Yet I am glad that the instances in which woman makes utter shipwreck of character are comparatively rare.

YOU WILL FIND GOOD PEOPLE IF GOOD YOURSELF.

But, says some cynical spirit, what do you do with those words in Ecclesiastes where Solomon says: "Behold, this have I found, saith the preacher, counting one by one, to find out the account which yet my soul seeketh, but I find not: one man among a thousand have I found; but a woman among all those have I not found." My answer is, that if Solomon had behaved himself with common decency and kept out of infamous circles he would not have had so much difficulty in finding integrity of character among women and never would have uttered such a tirade.

Ever since my childhood I have heard speakers admiring Diogenes, the cynical philosopher who lived in a tub, for going through the streets of Athens in broad daylight with a lantern, and when asked what he did that for, said: "I am looking for an honest man."

Now, I warrant that that philosopher who had such hard work to find an honest man was himself dishonest. I think he stole both the lantern and the tub. So when I hear a man expatiating on the weaknesses of woman I immediately suspect him and say: There is another Solomon with Solomon's wisdom left out. Still I would not have the illustrations I have given of transcending excellency in female biography lead you to suppose that there are no perils in woman's pathway. God's grace alone can make an Isabella Graham, or a Christina Alsop, or a Fidelia Fiske, or a Catherine of Siena. Temptations lurk about the brightest domestic circle. It was no unmeaning thing when God set up amidst the splendors of his word the character of infamous Delilah.

HOW GOOD MEN LOSE STRENGTH.

Again, this strange story of the text leads me to consider some of the ways in which strong men get their locks shorn. God, for some reason best known to himself, made the strength of Samson to depend on the length of his hair; when the shears clipped it his strength was gone. The strength of men is variously distributed. Sometimes it lies in physical development, sometimes in intellectual attainments, sometimes in heart force, sometimes in social position, sometimes in numerical association, and there is always a sharp shears ready to destroy it. Every day there are Samsons ungianted. I saw a young man start life under the most cheering advantages. His mental mind was at home in all scientific dominions. He reached not only all rugged attainments, but by delicate appreciation he could catch the tinge of the cloud and the sparkle of the wave and the diapason of the thunder. He was a mark in the head and shoulders above others in mental stature. He could wrestle with giants in opposing systems of philosophy and carry off the gates of opposing schools, and smite the enemies of truth hip and thigh with great slaughter. But he began to tamper with brilliant freethinking. Modern theories of the soul threw over him their blandishments. Skepticism was the Delilah that shore his locks off, and all the Philistines of doubt and darkness and despair were upon him. He died in a very prince of unbelief, his eyes out.

Far back in the country districts—just where I purposely omit to say—there was born one whose fame will last as long as American institutions. His name was the terror of all enemies of free government. He stood, the admired of millions; the nation uncovered in his presence, and when he spoke senates sat breathless under the spell. The plotters against good government attempted to bind him with green withes and weave his locks in a web, yet he walked forth from the enthrallment, not knowing he had burst a bond. But from the wine cup there arose a destroying spirit that came forth to capture his soul. He drank until his eyes grew dim and his knees knocked together and his strength failed. Exhausted with lifelong dissipation he went home to die. Ministers pronounced eloquent eulogiums, and poets sung, and painters sketched, and sculptors chiseled the majestic form into marble, and the world wept, but everywhere it was known that it was strong drink that came like the infamous Delilah and his locks were shorn.

From the Island of Corsica there started forth a nature charged with unparalleled energies to make thrones tremble and convulse the earth. Piedmont, Naples, Bavaria, Germany, Italy, Austria and England rose up to crush the rising man. At the plunge of bayonets Bastiles burst open. The earth groaned with the agonies of Rivoli, Austerlitz, Saragossa and Eylau. Five million men slain in his wars. Crowns were showered at his feet, and kingdoms hoisted triumphal arches to let him pass under, and Europe was lighted up at the conflagration of consuming cities. He could almost have made a causeway of human bones between Lisbon and Moscow. No power short of the omnipotent God could arrest him. But out of the ocean of human blood there arose a spirit in which the conqueror found more than a match. The very ambition that had rocked the world was now to be his destroyer. It grasped for too much, and in its effort lost all. He reached up after the scepter of universal dominion, but slipped and fell back into desolation and banishment. The American ship, damaged of the storm, today puts in at St. Helena and the crew go up to see the spot where the French exile expired in loneliness and disgrace, the mightiest of all Samsons shorn of his locks by ambition, that most merciless of all Delilahs.

THE EARTH STREWN WITH SLAIN GIANTS.

I have not time to enumerate. Evil associations, sudden successes, spendthrift habits, miserly proclivities and dissipation are the names of some of the shears with which men are every day made powerless. They have strewn the earth with the carcasses of giants and filled the great prison house with destroyed Samsons, who sit grinding the mills of despair, their locks shorn and their eyes out. If parents only knew to what temptations their children were subjected they would be more earnest in their prayers and more careful about their example. No young man escapes having the pathway of sin pictured in bright colors before him.

The first time I ever saw a city—it was the city of Philadelphia—I was a mere lad. I stopped at a hotel, and I remember in the eventide a corrupt man plied me with his infernal art. He saw I was green. He wanted to show me the sights of the town. He painted the path of sin until it looked like emerald; but I was afraid of him. I shoved back from the bauble; I made up my mind he was a baulbuk. I remember how he whacked his chair round in front of me, and with a concentrated and diabolic effort attempted to destroy my soul; but there were good angels in the air that night. It was no good resolution on my part, but it was the all encompassing grace of a good God that delivered me. Beware! beware! O young man! There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is death. If all the victims of an impure life in all lands and ages could be gathered together, they would make a host vaster than that which Xerxes led across the Hellespont, than Timour led across India, than William the Conqueror led across England, than Abou-Bekr led across Syria; and if they could be stretched out in single file across this continent, I think the vanguard of the host would stand on the beach of the Pacific while yet the rear guard stood on the beach of the Atlantic.

BEWARE IN TIME.

I say this not because I expect to reclaim any one that has gone astray in this fearful path, but because I want to utter a warning for those who still maintain their integrity. The cases of reclamation of those who have given themselves fully up to an impure life are so few, probably you do not know one of them. I have seen a good many start out on that road. How many have I seen come back? Not one that I now think of. It seems as if the spell of death is on them and no human voice nor the voice of God can break the spell. Their feet are boggled, their wrists are handcuffed. They have around them a girdle of reptiles bunched at the waist, fastening them to an iron doom; every time they breathe the forked tongues strike them and they strain to break away until the tendons snap and the blood exudes; and amidst their contortions they cry out: "Take me back to my father's house. Where is mother? Take me home! Take me home!" Do I stand before a man today the locks of whose strength are being toyed with, let me tell you to escape for the shears of destruction take your moral and your spiritual integrity. Do you not see your sandals beginning to curl on that red hot path? This day in the name of Almighty God I tear off the beautifying veil and the embroidered mantle of this old hag of iniquity, and I show you the ulcers and the bloody ichor and the cancered lip and the parting joints and the macerated limbs and the wriggling putrefaction, and I cry out: Oh, horror of horrors! In the stillness of this Sabbath hour I lift a warning. Remember it is much easier to form bad habits than to get clear of them; in one minute of time you may get into a sin from which all eternity cannot get you out. Oh, that the voice of God's truth might drown the voice of Delilah. Come into the ways of pleasantness and the paths of peace, and by the grace of a pardoning God start for thrones of honor and dominion upon which you may reign, rather than travel the road to a dungeon where the destroyed grind in the mills of despair, their locks shorn and their eyes out.

STEAMER COMPETITION.

A Lively Opposition Shortly to be Inaugurated.

The organization of the Puget Sound & Alaska Steamship Company, by directors and officials of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, is one of the most important of recent events which have occurred on the coast. The company has already purchased the Hudson River steamer City of Kingston, and will bring her around via the Straits of Magellan at once to ply between Tacoma and this port. Another steamer, a companion to the City of Kingston, is also being sought. Besides these two craft an excursion steamer for the Alaskan trade will be bought or built.

The Northern Pacific advertises extensively in the east and Europe and as a result thousands of pleasure seeking men and women come to Tacoma to embark on the steamers for a trip to Alaska. Heretofore the Northern Pacific has set the tourists down at Tacoma and they were taken to Alaska on steamers owned by the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, a company controlled by another corporation which is in turn controlled by the Union Pacific Railroad Company. The fight for the control of the Sound and Alaska passenger business and freight traffic between the Northern Pacific Railroad on one hand and the O. R. & N. Company and the Union Pacific road on the other, has apparently commenced.

Salmon Export.

The steamer Rithet brought down to-day 5000 cases Horseshoe brand canned salmon from the Richmond cannery for J. H. Todd & Son for shipment to England via San Francisco.

Charged With Theft.

Sergt. Walker arrested a man named William Nevel this afternoon on a charge of stealing from the Clarence Hotel. Other shady transactions are laid to the culprit, who is a dudish appearing youth.

Marine.

The bark Lebu has been fitted with a new bowsprit to replace the one carried away on the voyage out.

The large fleet of sealing schooners in the harbor nearly monopolize the anchorage near Point Ellice Bridge.

Large Sale of Opium.

The opium accumulating from the various seizures during the past year, 572½ pounds prepared and 64 pounds crude, was sold at auction at Port Townsend Thursday. The proceeds of the sale aggregated nearly $7,000.

Pay Day.

City treasurer Kent and clerk Dowler went out to the Royal Oak this morning in a hack. They were accompanied by about $2000 made up in neat envelopes, the same being the month's pay for the hands employed on the water works, filling in the trenches.

Must Register.

Several owners of drays, hacks, etc., have been served with summonses for violation of the hired vehicle by-law by not registering their rigs which ply for hire. After a few fines are paid, the owners will probably awake to the fact that it is cheaper to pay the registry fee.

Capt. Murphy's Mistakes.

The "mate" taken by Capt. Murphy on the bark Camelot, in place of Mr. Pike, was one B. Garside, who holds no certificate whatever. It is said that he tried to pass before Capt. Lewis some weeks ago but failed. The penalty for leaving port without a certificated mate aboard is £100. Evidently Captain Murphy has made another mistake.

Mrs Scott-Siddons.

Mrs Scott-Siddons has physical advantages of a rare order, a graceful figure, a face of uncommon beauty, and singular brilliancy and refinement of expression, and a clear, full voice of equal power and flexibility, combining with these precious gifts histrionic talent and elocutionary skill. She excels in passionate grief and profound terror.—London Morning Post.

Speaks Well for the C. P. R.

A party of several ladies left this city for the east a few days ago over the Canadian Pacific railway. While thoroughly delighted with the grand scenery, their ecstasy was unbounded over the cuisine, specifying delicious cream and Lake Superior trout as being something delicious. As one naively confesses in a letter, "I guess the railroad didn't make much off me. I had such an appetite."

He was Not Surprised.

Alaska Free Press: The U. S. revenue cruiser Rush dropped anchor at Sitka on September 12th. The commander of the vessel was not much surprised to find that not one of the dozen seized sealers had reported there, but he did his duty in the matter, and leaves Uncle Sam to say whether or not he will throw his cases for intor into the ring a'so and fight John Bull to a finish, or call the whole thing a draw.

Rushing the Work.

The pipes for the Johnson street sewer are being rapidly laid now, the workmen having reached opposite Waddington all y to-day. The pioneer excavators are trenching at a fast rate, Broad street being now crossed. Mr. Leech, city surveyor, was out to-day with his theodolite running the line up across Douglas street and the chances are in favor of the sewer being completed before the fall rains set in.

A Nuisance.

There are two ill-looking women peddling small articles and ladies' wear daily in the city, going from house to house. This thing might be tolerated if a modicum of politeness was thrown in, but besides a persistency bordering on a nuisance their language is obscene when ladies decline to buy. One gentleman said to-day he would report them to the police if his wife was troubled again with them, they having already made no less than six calls on this particular person.

A Hard Worker.

Rev. C. S. Mason, of San Francisco, evangelist of the Y.M.C.A. for the coast, has been in the city and province for some time past. He feels highly gratified at the growth of the association, which now numbers 6,000 members on the Pacific coast, of which 2,000 are in the States of Oregon and Washington and this province. Mr. Mason has done a rast deal of work since coming north, and returns home to-morrow on the Walla Walla, well satisfied with his labors.

From Queen Charlotte Islands.

Mr. W. A. Robertson returned from Queen Charlotte Islands this morning on the steamer Sardonyx. Mr. Robertson says the reports of coal claims in which he is interested turning out well are quite true. The seam is about 32 feet in thickness. He has been principally engaged during the summer in making a trail and rendering the mine accessible from the coast.

The summer at Queen Charlotte Islands has been stormy and the "skil" fisheries have not been completely successful in consequence.

Wild Horse Creek.

Advices from this mining district, dated the 18th ult., state that a good quartz ledge has been struck on the head of Sheep Creek, about ten miles from Walker and Vosses' ledge. The ledge looks well and carries a strong copper strain with a great deal of bromide or galena. Samples have been sent for assay.

On the 9th and 10th ult., snow fell at Wild Horse to the depth of four inches and there was a foot deep of the fleecy on Perry Creek. Nothing of an encouraging nature has been found in the shaft sunk at the latter place.

North Field Mine.

The work at this new mine of the New Vancouver Coal Company is progressing most favorably. Over 100 tons of superior quality of the famous Wellington coal has already been brought to the surface.

Contracts have now been let to run in levels from the shaft, work on which will be prosecuted by three shifts.

Already North Field mine is beginning to look like a thriving mining camp. The line of railway is being graded, the bridges and trestles constructed, and the extensive loading wharves erected with all practicable speed, so that in a few months' time the shipment of coal from the North Field mine will be an important factor in the prosperity of Nanaimo and district.

THE SARDONYX ARRIVES.

She Brings a Large Load of Salmon From Northern Canneries.

The C. P. N. Co's steamer Sardonyx, Capt. Meyer, arrived early this morning from the north with a large passenger and freight list. Part of her cargo was 5,553 cases of salmon from the following canneries: Windsor Packing Co., 2,000; McLellan's Cannery, 1,553; Cunningham's 2,000. Sixty barrels of salt fish from the Nass, and 278 casks of Skidegate oil was also brought down.

On Thursday the steamer Elder was passed near Bella Bella, bound north. The steamer Boscowitz passed up the Skeena while the Sardonyx was lying at that port. Nothing of importance occurred during the trip, the weather being mild, but rainy.

The Sardonyx is discharging salmon into the bark Lebu to-day.

WAS IT AN ABDUCTION CASE?

Among the passengers by the steamer North Pacific from Port Townsend last night was the heroine of the recent elopement case spoken of in the edition of yesterday. The young lady was interviewed by a TIMES representative this afternoon, and to him she stated that it was not an elopement, as she was an unwilling passenger to "the land of the free" the other night. The facts of the case, as given by her are as follows:

On the evening they left here in the boat it had been arranged that both were to go to a party at a friend's house out Saanich way, and Paul calling in a cab at the young lady's residence, the pair started on their trip. When the cab reached the city end of James Bay bridge, Paul stopped the vehicle and getting out went down to the boat house. On his return to the cab he told his companion that he had just got news that his friend out Saanich way was ill, and that the party would not come off. He also told her that there was to be a party aboard one of the ships at Esquimalt and said that they had better go there, and, as it was a fine evening, it would be nicer to go by boat.

After some objections the young lady consented and the twain embarked. This was about 7 o'clock in the evening, and by the time the outer entrance to the harbor was reached it was dusk.

Instead of heading around for Esquimalt, Paul stood out in the straits. It was rapidly getting darker, and the young lady anxiously enquired when the man-of-war would be reached. Paul answered evasively. After a time a light was seen ahead, which Paul stated was the ships' light of the Amphion. (As a matter of fact it was the light on the point at Port Angeles.)

After a time, it getting very dark and late, Paul told his companion that the boat was in a current and unmanageable. When daylight broke they were about five miles from the American shore and Paul suggested that they land. As the young lady could do no better she agreed to this, and the boat sailed alongside the wharf. On arriving, Paul told a plausible story of the drifting over of the boat by the current, but the story was started that the pair were runaways from Victoria.

The young lady at once went to the Olympian Hotel at Port Angeles, and told her story to Mrs. C. W. Brewster. This lady, with the true heart of a mother and a woman, told the young girl that she should be protected, as Paul about this time became very importunate to have the marriage ceremony performed, and the young lady would not consent, as she felt sure her parents would not be satisfied. Paul tried to represent to several people that they were married, but the young lady denied it.

Finding that the girl was anxious to get back to her parents in Victoria, Mrs. Browster saw her safe aboard the steamer Idaho bound for Port Townsend.

Paul also took passage, and on the boat tried to again persuade the young lady to marry him, and even told the purser that they were married. This was denied by the young girl, who now told the bold abductor that she considered his conduct as very reprehensible and any love she might formerly have had for him was now turned to hate, as his actions had been so unmanlike and despicable.

On reaching Port Townsend the young lady took the steamer for Victoria, but Paul would not escort her back, but he to the last protested that it was not his fault that they came over, but laid it to the treacherous current. He even at the last moment tried to get the girl to stay with him, but she would not. Her family were overjoyed at her arrival last night and the mother, who never for a moment doubted her daughter's honor, is now more than ever sure that she has been the victim of the trick of a designing scoundrel, who thought when he had taken the girl from home and friends he could turn her to his wishes. He has now discovered his mistake and will be always remembered as a coward who took a girl away against her will, and then hadn't the sand to return and face the music.

The Ancon's Cargo

The probabilities are that all the canned salmon on the Ancon will be recovered, but the cases will all have to be cleaned, re-lacquered and re-labeled, and put into clean new boxes. This will cost about $1.50 per case. The salmon in the cases will not be injured by the exchange. Seventeen thousand five hundred cases were on board at the time of the accident.
